Zugeordnete Lehrveranstaltungen: Introduction to American Literary Studies (Vorlesung) The course is designed to acquaint students with the terminology, methods, and techniques of literary studies (Part I) by analyzing texts taken from various literary periods and genres (Part II). The course thus offers a first overview of American literary history from the colonial period to the present. Students in the "Lehramt Gymnasium" program as well as Bachelor's students majoring in "Anglistik/Amerikanistik" are required to take the "Supplementary Course: American Literary Studies" alongside this lecture. Since the final exam for these programs covers both courses, they should be attended within the same semester. Students in other programs do not need to take the supplementary course but are welcome to do so on a voluntary (non-credit) basis. Introduction to English Literary Studies

This course introduces students to important concepts, genres, terms and methods of analysis in English literary studies. It offers systematic knowledge of genres in literary studies (poetry, drama, narrative), gives an introduction to the diverse theoretical contexts of the study of literature (literary theory), and provides basic information about the historical development of English literature. Furthermore, students will be made familiar with elementary techniques of research and essential study aids in English literary studies. An obligatory part of the course is to attend a library-information session specifically designed for students of English. Students need to register for one of the available dates at the beginning of term (search for "Bibliotheksbenutzung für Studierende des Fachs Anglistik/Amerikanistik" on Digicampus). In certain degree programmes (e.g. LA Gymn. Englisch, BA-Hauptfach Anglistik/Amerikan., BA Vergl. Lit.wiss. mit Angl./Amerik.), students are required to at... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Supplementary Course: Introduction to English Literary Studies

This course accompanies the course "Introduction to English Literary Studies". It serves as a platform for expanding on the contents of the main introductory course. Since it is specifically designed to complement the said course, it should be attended in the same term. (Please note that it may *not* be combined with the course "Introduction to American Literature".) In certain degree programmes (e.g. LA Gymn. Englisch, BA-Hauptfach Anglistik/Amerikan., BA Vergl. #### Begleitübung Supplementary Course: American Literary Studies

This course is a supplement to the lecture course "Introduction to American Literary Studies." Participants will be provided the opportunity to acquire a variety of skills needed for effectively and successfully studying Anglophone literatures in general, and American literature in particular. In the first half of the semester, students will get to know basic academic working standards and encounter a range of important methods and techniques. In the second half, we will build on and implement the subject matter taught in the main lecture course by reading, discussing, and analyzing a number of literary texts in smaller groups and a more practice-oriented environment. Participants are required to read and prepare all of the assigned texts on time and share their responses during discussions.

Modulteil: PS English and American Studies: Intermediate 1 Lehrformen: Proseminar Sprache: Englisch / Deutsch SWS: 2
Zugeordnete Lehrveranstaltungen: PS Sociolinguistics (Proseminar) In this course, we will focus on the relationship of interdependence between language and the persons who use it; more specifically, we will explore how different social factors such as age, gender, ethnicity and social networks constrain language use, and how language contributes to the construal of identity. To develop a better understanding of Sociolinguistics as a field of study, we will look at classical and more recent sociolinguistic studies, and get some hand-on experience in sociolinguistic analysis in various exercises and mini projects.

The Language Situation in Wales (Proseminar)

This seminar will be taught by Mr. Sebastian Wagner. An astonishing 20% of Wales' citizens are still able to communicate in Welsh, the country's second official language, although living in close vicinity to England and its globally spoken language. The particular language situation in Wales provides an excellent basis not only for showing the influence of language contact (e.g. in the resulting bilingualism and the formation of linguistic attitudes) but also for examining the linguistic features of 'Welsh English' in the context of its origination and in contrast to 'English English' and to the revitalised minority language, Welsh. The present seminar will address the topics above and additionally seek to give an insight into the diverse roles languages play in present-day Welsh society.

Contemporary American Drama (Proseminar)

From the 1950s onwards, American playwrights have increasingly widened the thematic scope of drama (ethnicity, homosexuality, capitalism) with stylistically original plays. Yet some scholars have recently observed a still prominent tendency towards mainstream American realism in contemporary drama and theatre (Grabes, Saddik). Looking at a selection of recent plays, this seminar will consider how contemporary plays confirm or challenge such categories thematically and aesthetically. In this respect, we will trace major thematic issues in contemporary American drama (e.g. identity, digital age, consumer society) and relate them to cultural contexts, stylistic trends, and consider their socio-cultural relevance. The texts discussed in this seminar will range from stylistically experimental plays (Adrienne Kennedy) to thematically innovative plays: Jennifer Haley, for instance, provocatively addresses the subject of virtual reality in her critically acclaimed play The Nether (2013), raisi... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Contrastive Linguistics (Proseminar)

Contrastive Linguistics is a linguistic approach which compares different languages in order to provide systematic descriptions of both similarities and differences between them. Originally, contrastive studies mainly aimed at making predictions about learners' progression in foreign language acquisition, but they soon developed into a linguistic discipline in its own right. While a contrastive study of two different languages does not need to follow a larger agenda, insights from contrastive analysis can inform applied disciplines, such as translation studies, lexicography, second language teaching and many more. In this seminar, we will focus on a contrastive description of English and German. Starting off with familiarising ourselves with the central tenets and origins of Contrastive Linguistics, we will move on to a systematic application of these principles to the different levels of linguistic description (phonology, morphology/word formation, syntax, semantics, pragmatics...).... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Virginia Woolf (Proseminar)

Virginia Woolf is known for many things, not only for her writing and her contribution to modernism but for her role in feminism, her lesbian tendencies, and her mental illness as well. Living from 1882 through 1941, Woolf witnessed the transition from Victorian confidence to modernist scepticism and relativism, and sought to chart this new consciousness in her fiction as she battled with ongoing mental illness and a troubled personal life. Taking the novel in a new direction, her novels replace the omniscient narrator by the shifting perspectives of the characters' thought and perception, and create a new sense of how reality is constituted and perceived. In this seminar we will approach the life and work of Virginia Woolf through four of her major novels (Mrs Dalloway, To the Lighthouse, Orlando, and The Waves), selected essays, shorter fiction, and letters. In addition, we will watch two film adaptations of novels by Woolf (Orlando, dir. by Sally Potter and The Hours, dir. by Stephe... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Literature of the American South (Proseminar)

This seminar focuses especially on the literature of the (deep) American South. This region has created a vivid literary tradition for more than four centuries including strong self-referential themes and an expression of a certain sense of place, Southern identity and history as well as distinct cultural experiences, typical motifs and topics, symbols and myths. The cultural traditions of the American literature will be approached from a Southern angle and show the relation to the multiplicity, complexity, and contradictoriness of the American literary consciousness (cf. Andrews). The course includes seminal novels by Harper Lee and Toni Morrison as well as shorter texts from the 19th century to the present and film examples to provide an idea of the American Southern experience expressed within cultural frameworks. Texts will focus on ethnical and racial topics, historical antebellum events, the post war period and contemporary examples. We will also consider topical incidents in the... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS History of English (Proseminar)

In this class we will trace back the roots of the English language starting with its genealogical origins as an Indo-European and Germanic language, and then describe its development through the major periods of Old, Middle and Early Modern English up to Modern Day English. All the major linguistic levels such as phonetics/phonology, morphology, syntax and lexicon will be investigated by means of the basic methods and principles of Historical Linguistics, but also by analyzing original texts. We will also take into consideration which external influences (e.g. Viking invasions, Norman conquest) both contributed to and caused the specific changes the English language underwent.

Ecocriticism im zeitgenössischen Film (Proseminar)

Mensch und Natur ist innerhalb des zeitgenössischen Films ein populärer Topos. Ob Avatar, Into the Wild, Der große Trip - Wild oder Life of Pi, das Medien- und Kunstsystem reflektiert menschliche Sehnsüchte nach und Herausforderungen durch Naturerlebnisse. Im Mittelpunkt des Seminars liegt die Untersuchung der besprochenen Filme im Hinblick auf ökologische Aspekte: Wie wird Natur konstruiert? Welches Versprechen liegt den Naturerfahrungen zugrunde? Welche narrative Rolle spielt die ökologische Krise?

The Fiction of Infinity (Proseminar)

Infinity is a concept that has fascinated humans ever since antiquity. It has become an object of research and contemplation in mathematics, philosophy, the sciences, theology and the arts, and thinkers from Aristotle and Augustine to Georg Cantor and present-day physicists with their multiverse theories have tried to come to terms with the enigma presented by the infinite. This course will look at infinity as a motif in prose fiction from the 20th and 21st centuries. Particularly we shall focus on how the infinite may be represented in fiction. How can infinity be contained in the finite space between the covers of a book? Are there any particular narrative strategies that put forward the infinite in representation? Using theories of postmodernism and literary ethics, we will then explore what the function of such representations of infinity in literary discourse may be. The three novels we will discuss in this course are Flann O'Brien's At Swim-Two-Birds (1939), John Banville's The I... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

The American Drama of the Early 20th Century (Proseminar)

In this seminar we will look at what was described at the time as "the newest, freest, most potent and democratic forces in the art of the American stage – the Little Theatre." (Mackay 1917) The Little Theatre Movement became a steadily growing movement over the second decade of the 20th century and has revolutionized the American theatre scene from the communal margins. Amateur actors and playwrights were provided a space to experiment with new forms of dramatic expression while the Broadway theatres were still dominated by European influences. However, also the Little Theatre Movement had its origins in Europe but provided a new space for the emergence of a 'genuine' American drama. In this course we will look at the cultural background of the American theater scene during the 19th century, the emergence of the Little Theatre Movement as a broad movement but also at specific little theatres in various regions of the US. It is also the aim of the seminar to enable students to analyze ... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Syntax: Theory and Practice (Proseminar)

In this course, we will focus on various structural units of English and their grammatical description. Thereby, we shall systematically move from micro to macro, considering the structure of simple and complex sentences and their informational structures, as well as the coherence relations holding between sentences making up larger stretches of discourse. While discussing and comparing key theoretical frameworks of Generative Grammars, Dependency Grammars and Functional Grammars, we will also practice how to apply these to authentic data.

Northern Englishes (Proseminar)

This seminar will be taught by Mr. Sebastian Wagner. The present seminar addresses the English varieties as used in the North of the United Kingdom. Following a rough delimitation of dialect areas the distinct phonological, morphological and syntactical features are worked out in order to contrast them with those features found in Southern varieties. A look at the history of the English language provides an understanding of the role Northern English has played in the development of Modern Standard English. Furthermore, we will reflect on current developments in the research on varieties, which shed light on processes such as the emergence of linguistic "Northern identities", the socio-cultural phenomenon of dialect loyalty as well as on the diverse attitudes towards regional varieties.

Restoration Comedy (Proseminar)

When in 1660, after eighteen years of Puritan rule, the Stuart dynasty was restored to the throne and the theatres reopened, England saw the birth of a new type of drama. Licentious, frivolous and light-hearted, these plays expressed the new sense of life which spread among society and the arts after the end of dour Puritanism. Today, Restoration Comedy is most notorious for its bawdy humour and immorality, cuckolding, seduction and shaming rituals being frequently repeated themes. But also the display of wit and cleverness in comedic situations, the parody of class-typical behaviour (comedy of manners), stock characters, political topicality and social criticism are common elements. In this course, we will have a close look at several plays that are commonly considered representative of the "genre" of Restoration Comedy. We will situate the plays in their historical context and try to work out their specific and distinguishing features. We will also apply basic techniques of drama ana... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Foreign Accent (Proseminar)

Foreign accent is an unavoidable problem for all adult learners - or is it? In any case there certainly are big individual differences between speakers. A lot of factors are responsible for why someone may be better than someone else, and this class will cover them all: age/neural organization, motivation, experience, input, personality, learning styles, memory etc. The class will also introduce different forms (segmental and prosodic) and models of foreign accent that may predict problems and errors and allow us to improve or perhaps even sound native (sometimes ...). Finally, this seminar will also describe different methods of instruction and discuss the perception of foreign accent in society.

Kazuo Ishiguro (Proseminar)

Born in Nagasaki on 8th November 1954, Kazuo Ishiguro has, over the past 30 years, become one of the most famous novelists and story-tellers in the world. Literary history, scholars and newspaper articles alike describe and see him as one of the most exquisite voices of the contemporary British novel. He is a safe bet on almost any shortlist and always a strong contender for any award worldwide. The list of won prizes and awards seems endless but one should definitely mention the 1989 Booker Prize for Fiction (awarded for The Remains of the Day) and the 1995 Cheltenham Prize (awarded for The Unconsoled). Furthermore, his nomination as Chevalier de l'Ordre des Arts et des Lettres in 1998 adds further to his status as one of the most distinguished novelists alive. Several of his novels have been made into films, making Ishiguro available to and popular with an even broader public. Most famous and notable is perhaps John Ivory's brilliant film adaptation of The Remains of the Day in which... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Indigenous Science Fiction (Proseminar)

This seminar examines science fiction narratives by indigenous writers from North America, Australia and New Zealand. After an introduction to the central themes and motifs of science fiction, we analyze The Moons of Palmares, Shadows Cast by Stars, The Bird is Gone: A Manifesto and selected short stories from Walking the Clouds. We discuss to what extent these texts subvert Western-centric visions of the future and challenge stereotypes of indigeneity while at the same time allowing authors to "renew, recover, and extend First Nations peoples' voices and traditions," as Dillon phrases it in her introduction to Walking the Clouds.

PS Morphology: Theory and Practice (Proseminar)

This seminar deals with issues of advanced morphological theory. Lexical Morphology, for example, considers the word, not the morpheme to be the central unit of analysis and represents the lexicon as a hierarchical structure that allows for the interaction of morphological and phonological processes. We will also have a look at Prosodic Morphology to account for languages with non-concatenative morphological structure. Other morphological elements examined in more detail will be clitics and compounds.

Modernist Poetry and Poetics (Proseminar)

The Shock of the New: Modernist Poetry and Poetics Virginia Woolf famously stated that "on or about December, 1910, human character changed." Modernism saw unprecedented technological progress and industrialized warfare, and revolutionized the human (un)consciousness and social systems. It also led to an explosion of creative energy, as writers broke with literary traditions of the past which were deemed too genteel to account for the modernist condition. In this seminar, we will examine the ways in which modernist poets re-imagined the subjective experience of remembering, feeling, and being in time. Their artistic movements were transnational and urban, and we will discuss the Avant-garde manifestos that sprang from the creative scenes in Paris, London, or Zurich. The European metropolis is only part of the modernist story, though, and we will trace transatlantic connections to then focus in depth on how American modernists established a distinct cultural scene and new American verna... Zugeordnete Lehrveranstaltungen: Contemporary American Drama (Proseminar) From the 1950s onwards, American playwrights have increasingly widened the thematic scope of drama (ethnicity, homosexuality, capitalism) with stylistically original plays. Yet some scholars have recently observed a still prominent tendency towards mainstream American realism in contemporary drama and theatre (Grabes, Saddik). Looking at a selection of recent plays, this seminar will consider how contemporary plays confirm or challenge such categories thematically and aesthetically. In this respect, we will trace major thematic issues in contemporary American drama (e.g. identity, digital age, consumer society) and relate them to cultural contexts, stylistic trends, and consider their socio-cultural relevance. The texts discussed in this seminar will range from stylistically experimental plays (Adrienne Kennedy) to thematically innovative plays: Jennifer Haley, for instance, provocatively addresses the subject of virtual reality in her critically acclaimed play The Nether (2013), raisi... #### The Language Situation in Wales (Proseminar)

This seminar will be taught by Mr. Sebastian Wagner. An astonishing 20% of Wales' citizens are still able to communicate in Welsh, the country's second official language, although living in close vicinity to England and its globally spoken language. The particular language situation in Wales provides an excellent basis not only for showing the influence of language contact (e.g. in the resulting bilingualism and the formation of linguistic attitudes) but also for examining the linguistic features of 'Welsh English' in the context of its origination and in contrast to 'English English' and to the revitalised minority language, Welsh. The present seminar will address the topics above and additionally seek to give an insight into the diverse roles languages play in present-day Welsh society.

Literature of the American South (Proseminar)

This seminar focuses especially on the literature of the (deep) American South. This region has created a vivid literary tradition for more than four centuries including strong self-referential themes and an expression of a certain sense of place, Southern identity and history as well as distinct cultural experiences, typical motifs and topics, symbols and myths. The cultural traditions of the American literature will be approached from a Southern angle and show the relation to the multiplicity, complexity, and contradictoriness of the American literary consciousness (cf. Andrews). The course includes seminal novels by Harper Lee and Toni Morrison as well as shorter texts from the 19th century to the present and film examples to provide an idea of the American Southern experience expressed within cultural frameworks. Texts will focus on ethnical and racial topics, historical antebellum events, the post war period and contemporary examples. We will also consider topical incidents in the... #### Contrastive Linguistics (Proseminar)

Contrastive Linguistics is a linguistic approach which compares different languages in order to provide systematic descriptions of both similarities and differences between them. Originally, contrastive studies mainly aimed at making predictions about learners' progression in foreign language acquisition, but they soon developed into a linguistic discipline in its own right. While a contrastive study of two different languages does not need to follow a larger agenda, insights from contrastive analysis can inform applied disciplines, such as translation studies, lexicography, second language teaching and many more. In this seminar, we will focus on a contrastive description of English and German. Starting off with familiarising ourselves with the central tenets and origins of Contrastive Linguistics, we will move on to a systematic application of these principles to the different levels of linguistic description (phonology, morphology/word formation, syntax, semantics, pragmatics...).... #### Restoration Comedy (Proseminar)

When in 1660, after eighteen years of Puritan rule, the Stuart dynasty was restored to the throne and the theatres reopened, England saw the birth of a new type of drama. Licentious, frivolous and light-hearted, these plays expressed the new sense of life which spread among society and the arts after the end of dour Puritanism. Today, Restoration Comedy is most notorious for its bawdy humour and immorality, cuckolding, seduction and shaming rituals being frequently repeated themes. But also the display of wit and cleverness in comedic situations, the parody of class-typical behaviour (comedy of manners), stock characters, political topicality and social criticism are common elements. In this course, we will have a close look at several plays that are commonly considered representative of the "genre" of Restoration Comedy. We will situate the plays in their historical context and try to work out their specific and distinguishing features. We will also apply basic techniques of drama ana... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Northern Englishes (Proseminar)

This seminar will be taught by Mr. Sebastian Wagner. The present seminar addresses the English varieties as used in the North of the United Kingdom. Following a rough delimitation of dialect areas the distinct phonological, morphological and syntactical features are worked out in order to contrast them with those features found in Southern varieties. A look at the history of the English language provides an understanding of the role Northern English has played in the development of Modern Standard English. Furthermore, we will reflect on current developments in the research on varieties, which shed light on processes such as the emergence of linguistic "Northern identities", the socio-cultural phenomenon of dialect loyalty as well as on the diverse attitudes towards regional varieties.

The American Drama of the Early 20th Century (Proseminar)

In this seminar we will look at what was described at the time as "the newest, freest, most potent and democratic forces in the art of the American stage – the Little Theatre." (Mackay 1917) The Little Theatre Movement became a steadily growing movement over the second decade of the 20th century and has revolutionized the American theatre scene from the communal margins. Amateur actors and playwrights were provided a space to experiment with new forms of dramatic expression while the Broadway theatres were still dominated by European influences. However, also the Little Theatre Movement had its origins in Europe but provided a new space for the emergence of a 'genuine' American drama. In this course we will look at the cultural background of the American theater scene during the 19th century, the emergence of the Little Theatre Movement as a broad movement but also at specific little theatres in various regions of the US. It is also the aim of the seminar to enable students to analyze ... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS History of English (Proseminar)

In this class we will trace back the roots of the English language starting with its genealogical origins as an Indo-European and Germanic language, and then describe its development through the major periods of Old, Middle and Early Modern English up to Modern Day English. All the major linguistic levels such as phonetics/phonology, morphology, syntax and lexicon will be investigated by means of the basic methods and principles of Historical Linguistics, but also by analyzing original texts. We will also take into consideration which external influences (e.g. Viking invasions, Norman conquest) both contributed to and caused the specific changes the English language underwent.

The Fiction of Infinity (Proseminar)

Infinity is a concept that has fascinated humans ever since antiquity. It has become an object of research and contemplation in mathematics, philosophy, the sciences, theology and the arts, and thinkers from Aristotle and Augustine to Georg Cantor and present-day physicists with their multiverse theories have tried to come to terms with the enigma presented by the infinite. This course will look at infinity as a motif in prose fiction from the 20th and 21st centuries. Particularly we shall focus on how the infinite may be represented in fiction. How can infinity be contained in the finite space between the covers of a book? Are there any particular narrative strategies that put forward the infinite in representation? Using theories of postmodernism and literary ethics, we will then explore what the function of such representations of infinity in literary discourse may be. The three novels we will discuss in this course are Flann O'Brien's At Swim-Two-Birds (1939), John Banville's The I... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Sociolinguistics (Proseminar)

In this course, we will focus on the relationship of interdependence between language and the persons who use it; more specifically, we will explore how different social factors such as age, gender, ethnicity and social networks constrain language use, and how language contributes to the construal of identity. To develop a better understanding of Sociolinguistics as a field of study, we will look at classical and more recent sociolinguistic studies, and get some hand-on experience in sociolinguistic analysis in various exercises and mini projects.

Virginia Woolf (Proseminar)

Virginia Woolf is known for many things, not only for her writing and her contribution to modernism but for her role in feminism, her lesbian tendencies, and her mental illness as well. Living from 1882 through 1941, Woolf witnessed the transition from Victorian confidence to modernist scepticism and relativism, and sought to chart this new consciousness in her fiction as she battled with ongoing mental illness and a troubled personal life. Taking the novel in a new direction, her novels replace the omniscient narrator by the shifting perspectives of the characters' thought and perception, and create a new sense of how reality is constituted and perceived. In this seminar we will approach the life and work of Virginia Woolf through four of her major novels (Mrs Dalloway, To the Lighthouse, Orlando, and The Waves), selected essays, shorter fiction, and letters. In addition, we will watch two film adaptations of novels by Woolf (Orlando, dir. by Sally Potter and The Hours, dir. by Stephe... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Foreign Accent (Proseminar)

Foreign accent is an unavoidable problem for all adult learners - or is it? In any case there certainly are big individual differences between speakers. A lot of factors are responsible for why someone may be better than someone else, and this class will cover them all: age/neural organization, motivation, experience, input, personality, learning styles, memory etc. The class will also introduce different forms (segmental and prosodic) and models of foreign accent that may predict problems and errors and allow us to improve or perhaps even sound native (sometimes ...). Finally, this seminar will also describe different methods of instruction and discuss the perception of foreign accent in society.

Ecocriticism im zeitgenössischen Film (Proseminar)

Mensch und Natur ist innerhalb des zeitgenössischen Films ein populärer Topos. Ob Avatar, Into the Wild, Der große Trip - Wild oder Life of Pi, das Medien- und Kunstsystem reflektiert menschliche Sehnsüchte nach und Herausforderungen durch Naturerlebnisse. Im Mittelpunkt des Seminars liegt die Untersuchung der besprochenen Filme im Hinblick auf ökologische Aspekte: Wie wird Natur konstruiert? Welches Versprechen liegt den Naturerfahrungen zugrunde? Welche narrative Rolle spielt die ökologische Krise?

PS Syntax: Theory and Practice (Proseminar)

In this course, we will focus on various structural units of English and their grammatical description. Thereby, we shall systematically move from micro to macro, considering the structure of simple and complex sentences and their informational structures, as well as the coherence relations holding between sentences making up larger stretches of discourse. While discussing and comparing key theoretical frameworks of Generative Grammars, Dependency Grammars and Functional Grammars, we will also practice how to apply these to authentic data.

PS Morphology: Theory and Practice (Proseminar)

This seminar deals with issues of advanced morphological theory. Lexical Morphology, for example, considers the word, not the morpheme to be the central unit of analysis and represents the lexicon as a hierarchical structure that allows for the interaction of morphological and phonological processes. ### Kazuo Ishiguro (Proseminar)

Born in Nagasaki on 8th November 1954, Kazuo Ishiguro has, over the past 30 years, become one of the most famous novelists and story-tellers in the world. Literary history, scholars and newspaper articles alike describe and see him as one of the most exquisite voices of the contemporary British novel. He is a safe bet on almost any shortlist and always a strong contender for any award worldwide. The list of won prizes and awards seems endless but one should definitely mention the 1989 Booker Prize for Fiction (awarded for The Remains of the Day) and the 1995 Cheltenham Prize (awarded for The Unconsoled). Furthermore, his nomination as Chevalier de l'Ordre des Arts et des Lettres in 1998 adds further to his status as one of the most distinguished novelists alive. Several of his novels have been made into films, making Ishiguro available to and popular with an even broader public. Most famous and notable is perhaps John Ivory's brilliant film adaptation of The Remains of the Day in which... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Looking at a selection of recent plays, this seminar will consider how contemporary plays confirm or challenge such categories thematically and aesthetically. In this respect, we will trace major thematic issues in contemporary American drama (e.g. identity, digital age, consumer society) and relate them to cultural contexts, stylistic trends, and consider their socio-cultural relevance. The texts discussed in this seminar will range from stylistically experimental plays (Adrienne Kennedy) to thematically innovative plays: Jennifer Haley, for instance, provocatively addresses the subject of virtual reality in her critically acclaimed play The Nether (2013), raisi... #### Virginia Woolf (Proseminar)

Virginia Woolf is known for many things, not only for her writing and her contribution to modernism but for her role in feminism, her lesbian tendencies, and her mental illness as well. Living from 1882 through 1941, Woolf witnessed the transition from Victorian confidence to modernist scepticism and relativism, and sought to chart this new consciousness in her fiction as she battled with ongoing mental illness and a troubled personal life. Taking the novel in a new direction, her novels replace the omniscient narrator by the shifting perspectives of the characters' thought and perception, and create a new sense of how reality is constituted and perceived. In this seminar we will approach the life and work of Virginia Woolf through four of her major novels (Mrs Dalloway, To the Lighthouse, Orlando, and The Waves), selected essays, shorter fiction, and letters. In addition, we will watch two film adaptations of novels by Woolf (Orlando, dir. by Sally Potter and The Hours, dir. by Stephe... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Ecocriticism im zeitgenössischen Film (Proseminar)

Mensch und Natur ist innerhalb des zeitgenössischen Films ein populärer Topos. Ob Avatar, Into the Wild, Der große Trip - Wild oder Life of Pi, das Medien- und Kunstsystem reflektiert menschliche Sehnsüchte nach und Herausforderungen durch Naturerlebnisse. Im Mittelpunkt des Seminars liegt die Untersuchung der besprochenen Filme im Hinblick auf ökologische Aspekte: Wie wird Natur konstruiert? Welches Versprechen liegt den Naturerfahrungen zugrunde? Welche narrative Rolle spielt die ökologische Krise?

Contrastive Linguistics (Proseminar)

Contrastive Linguistics is a linguistic approach which compares different languages in order to provide systematic descriptions of both similarities and differences between them. Originally, contrastive studies mainly aimed at making predictions about learners' progression in foreign language acquisition, but they soon developed into a linguistic discipline in its own right. While a contrastive study of two different languages does not need to follow a larger agenda, insights from contrastive analysis can inform applied disciplines, such as translation studies, lexicography, second language teaching and many more. In this seminar, we will focus on a contrastive description of English and German. Starting off with familiarising ourselves with the central tenets and origins of Contrastive Linguistics, we will move on to a systematic application of these principles to the different levels of linguistic description (phonology, morphology/word formation, syntax, semantics, pragmatics...).... Zugeordnete Lehrveranstaltungen: Contemporary American Drama (Proseminar) From the 1950s onwards, American playwrights have increasingly widened the thematic scope of drama (ethnicity, homosexuality, capitalism) with stylistically original plays. Yet some scholars have recently observed a still prominent tendency towards mainstream American realism in contemporary drama and theatre (Grabes, Saddik). Looking at a selection of recent plays, this seminar will consider how contemporary plays confirm or challenge such categories thematically and aesthetically. PS Sociolinguistics (Proseminar)

In this course, we will focus on the relationship of interdependence between language and the persons who use it; more specifically, we will explore how different social factors such as age, gender, ethnicity and social networks constrain language use, and how language contributes to the construal of identity. To develop a better understanding of Sociolinguistics as a field of study, we will look at classical and more recent sociolinguistic studies, and get some hand-on experience in sociolinguistic analysis in various exercises and mini projects.

PS Morphology: Theory and Practice (Proseminar)

This seminar deals with issues of advanced morphological theory. Lexical Morphology, for example, considers the word, not the morpheme to be the central unit of analysis and represents the lexicon as a hierarchical structure that allows for the interaction of morphological and phonological processes. We will also have a look at Prosodic Morphology to account for languages with non-concatenative morphological structure. Other morphological elements examined in more detail will be clitics and compounds.

The Language Situation in Wales (Proseminar)

This seminar will be taught by Mr. Sebastian Wagner. An astonishing 20% of Wales' citizens are still able to communicate in Welsh, the country's second official language, although living in close vicinity to England and its globally spoken language. The particular language situation in Wales provides an excellent basis not only for showing the influence of language contact (e.g. in the resulting bilingualism and the formation of linguistic attitudes) but also for examining the linguistic features of 'Welsh English' in the context of its origination and in contrast to 'English English' and to the revitalised minority language, Welsh. The present seminar will address the topics above and additionally seek to give an insight into the diverse roles languages play in present-day Welsh society.

PS History of English (Proseminar)

In this class we will trace back the roots of the English language starting with its genealogical origins as an Indo-European and Germanic language, and then describe its development through the major periods of Old, Middle and Early Modern English up to Modern Day English. All the major linguistic levels such as phonetics/phonology, morphology, syntax and lexicon will be investigated by means of the basic methods and principles of Historical Linguistics, but also by analyzing original texts. We will also take into consideration which external influences (e.g. Viking invasions, Norman conquest) both contributed to and caused the specific changes the English language underwent.

Restoration Comedy (Proseminar)

When in 1660, after eighteen years of Puritan rule, the Stuart dynasty was restored to the throne and the theatres reopened, England saw the birth of a new type of drama. Licentious, frivolous and light-hearted, these plays expressed the new sense of life which spread among society and the arts after the end of dour Puritanism. Today, Restoration Comedy is most notorious for its bawdy humour and immorality, cuckolding, seduction and shaming rituals being frequently repeated themes. But also the display of wit and cleverness in comedic situations, the parody of class-typical behaviour (comedy of manners), stock characters, political topicality and social criticism are common elements. In this course, we will have a close look at several plays that are commonly considered representative of the "genre" of Restoration Comedy. We will situate the plays in their historical context and try to work out their specific and distinguishing features. We will also apply basic techniques of drama ana... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Foreign Accent (Proseminar)

Foreign accent is an unavoidable problem for all adult learners - or is it? In any case there certainly are big individual differences between speakers. A lot of factors are responsible for why someone may be better than someone else, and this class will cover them all: age/neural organization, motivation, experience, input, personality, learning styles, memory etc. The class will also introduce different forms (segmental and prosodic) and models of foreign accent that may predict problems and errors and allow us to improve or perhaps even sound native (sometimes ...). Finally, this seminar will also describe different methods of instruction and discuss the perception of foreign accent in society.

PS Indigenous Science Fiction (Proseminar)

This seminar examines science fiction narratives by indigenous writers from North America, Australia and New Zealand. After an introduction to the central themes and motifs of science fiction, we analyze The Moons of Palmares, Shadows Cast by Stars, The Bird is Gone: A Manifesto and selected short stories from Walking the Clouds. We discuss to what extent these texts subvert Western-centric visions of the future and challenge stereotypes of indigeneity while at the same time allowing authors to “renew, recover, and extend First Nations peoples’ voices and traditions,” as Dillon phrases it in her introduction to Walking the Clouds.

Kazuo Ishiguro (Proseminar)

Born in Nagasaki on 8th November 1954, Kazuo Ishiguro has, over the past 30 years, become one of the most famous novelists and story-tellers in the world. Literary history, scholars and newspaper articles alike describe and see him as one of the most exquisite voices of the contemporary British novel. He is a safe bet on almost any shortlist and always a strong contender for any award worldwide. The list of won prizes and awards seems endless but one should definitely mention the 1989 Booker Prize for Fiction (awarded for The Remains of the Day) and the 1995 Cheltenham Prize (awarded for The Unconsoled). Furthermore, his nomination as Chevalier de l'Ordre des Arts et des Lettres in 1998 adds further to his status as one of the most distinguished novelists alive. Several of his novels have been made into films, making Ishiguro available to and popular with an even broader public. Most famous and notable is perhaps John Ivory's brilliant film adaptation of The Remains of the Day in which... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

PS Syntax: Theory and Practice (Proseminar)

In this course, we will focus on various structural units of English and their grammatical description. Thereby, we shall systematically move from micro to macro, considering the structure of simple and complex sentences and their informational structures, as well as the coherence relations holding between sentences making up larger stretches of discourse. While discussing and comparing key theoretical frameworks of Generative Grammars, Dependency Grammars and Functional Grammars, we will also practice how to apply these to authentic data.

The Fiction of Infinity (Proseminar)

Infinity is a concept that has fascinated humans ever since antiquity. It has become an object of research and contemplation in mathematics, philosophy, the sciences, theology and the arts, and thinkers from Aristotle and Augustine to Georg Cantor and present-day physicists with their multiverse theories have tried to come to terms with the enigma presented by the infinite. This course will look at infinity as a motif in prose fiction from the 20th and 21st centuries. Particularly we shall focus on how the infinite may be represented in fiction. How can infinity be contained in the finite space between the covers of a book? Are there any particular narrative strategies that put forward the infinite in representation? Using theories of postmodernism and literary ethics, we will then explore what the function of such representations of infinity in literary discourse may be. The three novels we will discuss in this course are Flann O'Brien's At Swim-Two-Birds (1939), John Banville's The L... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

The American Drama of the Early 20th Century (Proseminar)

In this seminar we will look at what was described at the time as “the newest, freest, most potent and democratic forces in the art of the American stage – the Little Theatre.” (Mackay 1917) The Little Theatre Movement became a steadily growing movement over the second decade of the 20th century and has revolutionized the American theatre scene from the communal margins. Amateur actors and playwrights were provided a space to experiment with new forms of dramatic expression while the Broadway theatres were still dominated by European influences.

However, also the Little Theatre Movement had its origins in Europe but provided a new space for the emergence of a 'genuine' American drama. In this course we will look at the cultural background of the American theater scene during the 19th century, the emergence of the Little Theatre Movement as a broad movement but also at specific little theatres in various regions of the US. It is also the aim of the seminar to enable students to analyze ... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Northern Englishes (Proseminar)

This seminar will be taught by Mr. Sebastian Wagner. The present seminar addresses the English varieties as used in the North of the United Kingdom. Following a rough delimitation of dialect areas the distinct phonological, morphological and syntactical features are worked out in order to contrast them with those features found in Southern varieties. A look at the history of the English language provides an understanding of the role Northern English has played in the development of Modern Standard English. Furthermore, we will reflect on current developments in the research on varieties, which shed light on processes such as the emergence of linguistic "Northern identities", the socio-cultural phenomenon of dialect loyalty as well as on the diverse attitudes towards regional varieties.

Modernist Poetry and Poetics (Proseminar)

The Shock of the New: Modernist Poetry and Poetics Virginia Woolf famously stated that "on or about December, 1910, human character changed." Modernism saw unprecedented technological progress and industrialized warfare, and revolutionized the human (un)consciousness and social systems. It also led to an explosion of creative energy, as writers broke with literary traditions of the past which were deemed too genteel to account for the modernist condition. In this seminar, we will examine the ways in which modernist poets re-imagined the subjective experience of remembering, feeling, and being in time. Their artistic movements were transnational and urban, and we will discuss the Avant-garde manifestos that sprang from the creative scenes in Paris, London, or Zurich. The European metropolis is only part of the modernist story, though, and we will trace transatlantic connections to then focus in depth on how American modernists established a distinct cultural scene and new American verna... #### Literature of the American South (Proseminar)

This seminar focuses especially on the literature of the (deep) American South. This region has created a vivid literary tradition for more than four centuries including strong self-referential themes and an expression of a certain sense of place, Southern identity and history as well as distinct cultural experiences, typical motifs and topics, symbols and myths. The cultural traditions of the American literature will be approached from a Southern angle and show the relation to the multiplicity, complexity, and contradictoriness of the American literary consciousness (cf. Andrews). The course includes seminal novels by Harper Lee and Toni Morrison as well as shorter texts from the 19th century to the present and film examples to provide an idea of the American Southern experience expressed within cultural frameworks. Texts will focus on ethnical and racial topics, historical antebellum events, the post war period and contemporary examples. We will also consider topical incidents in the... Zugeordnete Lehrveranstaltungen: The Language of Evaluation (Übung) The moment we communicate with each other, either through writing or through speaking, we explicitly or implicitly express our viewpoint on both the subject matter and on the context in which the communicative process takes place. At the same time we even try to make the receiver/audience agree to our view of the world by generating solidarity. The language, which we use to evaluate, greatly depends on the text type and the context both influencing not only how we express but also how we perceive certain attitudes. The present seminar discusses the many faces of evaluation in the areas of political discourse, narratives, historiography, media and scientific discourse and introduces students to Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), an approach developed by Michael Halliday that regards language as a system of choices and which studies the relationship of language and its functions in social settings.... (weiter siehe Digicampus) Reading Contemporary Plays (Übung)

This course is designed to offer students the possibility to read and discuss a larger number of primary literature without having recourse to specific theory or following an overarching leitmotif. After an introductory phase, during which students will be made familiar with the most important techniques of drama analysis, we will study several selected contemporary plays and discuss them with regard to both form and content. The aim of the course is to provide an overview of important current topics in British and Irish drama such as national identity, globalization, gender and queer issues, intimate relationships and politics. We will also discuss questions concerning the suitability of the dramatic form to represent the human condition in the postmodern age and have a look at attempts at innovating theatre.

Renaissance Poetry (Übung)

As elsewhere in Europe, the Renaissance period in England brought about the flourishing of the arts and literature. The poetry written then by poets such as Wyatt, Sidney, Spenser, Shakespeare or Donne is still among the finest poetry written in the English language. The aim of this course is to give students an overview of English Renaissance poetry. The course covers both literary history and the socio-cultural background of the period and we will have a look at the most important topics and poetic forms of the period to see how they shaped poetic imagination. There will be plenty of opportunity to practise and refine poetry analysis skills in close readings of selected poems. This course covers the first part of the "Poetry: Elizabethan to Romantic Period" section of the corpus of topics for the state exam.

Theatre Trip to London 2016 (Exkursion)

Termin: voraussichtlich Anfang März 2016 Die Exkursion führt Studierende/Theaterinteressierte aus Augsburg in sämtliche Bereiche der englischen Theaterzene ein: National Theatre, das experimentelle Royal Court Theatre (English Stage Company) und kleinere Bühnen werden ebenso besucht wie die Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-upon-Avon, das ebenso wie Oxford (Magdalen-College, Ashmolean Museum) im Rahmen ein Ziel einer Tagesfahrt sein wird. Neben den Theaterbesuchen und der Diskussion der dort gesehenen Stücke sollen auch Einblicke in den Performanzaspekt des Dramas gewonnen werden. Wie jedes Jahr wird der Besuch des rekonstruierten Shakespeare Globe-Theaters für die Studierenden nicht nur eine Führung und einen Vortrag, sondern auch einen Workshop mit Schauspielern des Globe Ensembles enthalten. Der Performanzaspekt der Dramas steht darüber hinaus bei einer Backstage-Tour im National Theatre im Vordergrund, während der die Studierenden einen seltenen Blick hinter die Kulissen des T... #### VL Cultural Theory for Literary and Cultural Studies (Vorlesung)

These lectures on cultural theory outline some of the most relevant theoretical concepts for literary and cultural studies, including different notions of 'culture' itself. Rather than surveying theory for theory's sake, however, such concepts are presented as tools for analysis. Lectures will thus draw on current debates in order to demonstrate how questions of representation and power tie in with concepts such as 'identity' in the discursive field of culture. Examples and discussions from critical theory and pedagogy as well as from literary and cultural activism for social change complement the inquiry into the functions and effects of cultural representation.

Discourse Analysis (Übung)

This course is an introduction to the field of discourse analysis; the analysis of spoken and written language. We will discuss discursive concepts, e.g. cohesion, coherence, discourse markers, gambits, frames, etc.) and will clarify how texts are perceived as connected both on formal and functional grounds. However, we shall not only talk about the theoretical concepts connected to the study of discourse but also learn to analyse and critically assess discourse by drawing on a variety of practical examples and empirical data.

Dystopia in the Wasteland: Fallout (Übung)

The course's aim is to introduce students to the genre of the video game dystopia, which we will primarily do by conducting an in-depth analysis of Bethesda's Fallout 4 (2015). For this purpose, we will start by giving a short introduction to the concept of utopia / dystopia and to the specific genre of the video game dystopia. Besides the discussion of theoretical texts, we will briefly survey dystopian video games such as Half-Life 2 (Valve 2004), Metro 2033 (4A Games, 2010) and Tales From the Borderlands (Telltale Games, 2015). After this brief introductory segment, the course will exclusively focus on the analysis of Fallout 4. Our discussion will be supported by the lecture of theoretical texts as well as the playing of important parts of Fallout 4. The analysis will be conducted in three major steps: 1) discussion of the game's repertoire and extrapolative qualities, that is, the intimate relation of Fallout 4's virtual world to our empirical present, 2) the player's imaginative ... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Film Analysis (Übung)

This course introduces you to the study of film via a broad range of critical perspectives. It covers classical theories such as auteurism, semiotics, and psychoanalysis as well as contemporary approaches to film that focus on the relationship between the screen and the body and mind of the spectator, on issues of race, ethnicity, and national identity, and on the shift from analog to digital film-making. You will be provided with an array of terms relating to the language of film such as narrative, mise-en-scène, editing, and genre, and will learn to ask some of the key questions that have guided film studies for the last decades: what are the aesthetic choices made by filmmakers? How do films work on us psychologically? How do they affect us politically? Film Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Information Packaging (Übung)

This course will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. Information packaging is about how we say or write things to make the surface order correspond to the elements' semantic status and to render things more easily understandable. In order to do this we subconsciously pay attention to concepts such as the following: given/known, inferrable or completely new information, topic or theme (what the communication is about) vs. comment / rheme (was is said about it), contrastive focus, and the principle of weight (the length and complexity of elements within a sentence). In this course (taught by Claudia Claridge) we will look at authentic texts from various fields and registers to investigate how speakers/writers have solved such packaging tasks. We will also look at how English with its stricter word order (in contrast to German) has evolved special sentence types for some information packaging needs (e.g. cleft sentences, there-sentences).... ### American Modernism and Postmodernism (Vorlesung)

The lecture surveys the two major periods of American literature and culture in the twentieth century. It draws on a broad range of literary and cultural texts—primarily narratives, plays, and poems but also theoretical treatises, paintings, photography, and film—to explore the variety of cultural production during the modernist and postmodernist periods. CULTURAL STUDIES: Beside literary studies, the lecture can also be taken for most cultural studies modules, including GsHsE 05 (Nr. 3), RsE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 050 LK (Nr. 3), and all cultural studies modules in the Anglistik/Amerikanistik BA and MA programs.

Advanced Syntax (Übung)

This course builds on syntactic key concepts and principles of analysis you have familiarised yourselves with in the introductory lecture to linguistics and (optionally) a course on syntactic basics. It is the aim of this course to deepen your understanding of English syntax to a level of proficiency that will allow you develop good syntactic analyses of complex sentences at the level required for the state exams. Drawing upon previous state exams as well as other authentic sentences, we will focus on particular problematic areas and approach them from a theoretical as well as practical perspective: The theoretical perspective will provide you with a sound knowledge of principles and recurring lines of argumentation (and problems) principally with regard to the CGEL (as the compulsory grammatical model for the state exams), but also - selectively - with reference to other models of grammatical description. Building on this, practical analyses will help you develop strategies of apply... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Drama Analysis (Übung)

This course provides students with the basic skills needed for analysing drama through both theory and practice. Key concepts of drama analysis including the duality of drama and theatre, time, space, and open and closed form will be studied and applied to two plays, John Osborne's classic Look back in Anger (1957) and Martin Crimp's 'postdramatic' play Attempts on her Life (1997). Drama Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year.

Ü Postcolonial Studies: From Theory to Practice (14-tägig) (Übung)

In the bi-weekly sessions of this course we explore notions of the 'material' in the context of postcolonial literary and cultural studies. We will examine the functions and significance of objects and things in relation to processes of producing, constructing, collecting and representing them in literary, media and other cultural contexts. In the non-session weeks the theoretical knowledge gained from readings and course discussions will be applied to a set of practical and creative group tasks for the organization of the GAPS (Association for Anglophone Postcolonial Studies) conference that will take place at the University of Augsburg in May 2016.

The Roaring Twenties (Übung)

This course sets out to read and analyze works of modernist American literature that were written during what have been called "The Roaring Twenties," a decade of radical political and social changes – e.g. processes of urbanization, the development of a consumer culture, or the development of a shared media culture. We will explore how the literature of the time represents and stages these changes, aesthetic innovations, and relate the primary texts to programmatic and theoretical texts of the authors. This seminar is meant to acquaint students with a diversity of narratological, thematic, and stylistic structures. Furthermore it is the aim of the seminar to enable students to compare and contrast fictional texts in order to gain a deeper understanding of the complexity of the texts, their narrative structure, and their symbolic composition. A list of texts will be provided on digicampus at the beginning of the semester.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Ü Articulatory Phonetics A (Übung)

In this class you will be introduced to all the articulatory organs and processes involved in the production of speech starting from the brain "giving orders" to the muscles and including the lungs creating airflow, the larynx creating voice as well as the supraglottal articulators that create speech sounds that finally leave your lips as air pressure fluctuations. The class will examine all the speech sounds possible in human languages, but of course there will be a special focus on the speech sounds of English and the characteristics best used to describe them.

Ü Systemic Functional Grammar (Übung)

This course provides an introduction to M.A.K. Halliday's conception of systemic functional grammar, where grammar is seen as an instrument for constructing concise coherent communication. We look at the structure of a sentence and its function, and analyse sentences with regard to their constituents, that is subject, finites, predicators, complements and adjuncts, and with regard to what meaning they express. Some references: Bloor, T. and M. Bloor (1995): The Functional analysis of English. London: Arnold Halliday, M.A.K. (1994): An introduction to functional grammar. London: Arnold

Poetry Analysis (Übung)

Poetry analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory). This course is intended for all students of English and American Studies, who should have attended courses in all five of these areas before they register for their final exams. The course provides a comprehensive introduction to the key concepts of poetry analysis and its various critical approaches. For this purpose we will analyze a wide range of selected poems that comprise the major epochs of English literature. In order to fully understand these texts, we shall also explore their respective historical and literary contexts.

Jewish American Literature of the Turn of the 20th Century (Übung)

This course will approach and discuss the experiences of Jewish immigrants to the United States around the turn of the 20th century via the literary texts they produced. We will trace how their writings reflect both individual and collective concerns and how they served as a means to negotiate ethnic and religious identity during an era of increased efforts to Americanize newcomers, as a means to express feelings about both the 'old' world and the 'new,' as a means to come to terms with economic hardships, unfulfilled dreams, and hostility, as a means to voice social criticism, etc.

VL Key Topics in English Linguistics: Morphology (Vorlesung)

Morphological theories examine the theory and practice of inflection and word-formation. While the former focuses on the coding and expression of functional meaning, the latter examines morphological processes for the formation of new words. Word-formation examines the ways in which words are built and in which new words are built on the bases of other words. We will look at different definitions of the term 'word' as well as diverse ways of building new words, e.g., affixation, compounding and conversion. Some references Adams, V. (2001): Complex words in English. Harlow: Longman Harley, H. (2007): English Words. A linguistic introduction. Malden: Blackwell. Plag, I. (2003): Word-formation in English. #### Multimodality and Beyond (Übung)

According to the Glossary of Multimodality, "Multimodality is an inter-disciplinary approach that understands communication and representation to be more than about language." In this course, you are going to find out about the "more" provided by this approach in terms of methods, cooperating disciplines/approaches and fields of research, from a semiotic analysis of comics to a multimodal analysis of child play. #### Examenskolloquium Amerikanistik (Kolloquium)

Das Kolloquium dient der Vorbereitung der Staatsexamensprüfungen im Bereich der amerikanischen Literaturwissenschaft und der Magisterprüfungen im Fach Amerikanistik. Der Semesterplan richtet sich auch nach den Wünschen und Planungen der Teilnehmer, beinhaltet aber in jedem Fall folgende Themen: Überblick über das im schriftlichen Staatsexamen geforderte Hintergrundwissen; Form und Struktur von Prüfungssays; gemeinsame Bearbeitung schriftlicher Examensaufgaben; Hinweise zu mündlichen Prüfungen. N.B. Beim Examenskolloquium handelt es sich nicht um ein literaturgeschichtliches Repetitorium.

Study Trip to Ireland 2016 (Exkursion)

Wie in den vergangenen Jahren auch, wird von Prof. Dr. Middeke auch 2016 wieder eine Exkursion nach Irland angeboten. Die Exkursion findet Ende September 2016 statt und beinhaltet u.a. einen Besuch beim Dublin Theatre Festival und eine Fahrt an die Westküste. InteressentInnen tragen sich bitte unverbindlich in diese Veranstaltung ein und werden dann per Mail über Vorbesprechungen informiert. ACHTUNG: Die Anmeldung zu dieser Veranstaltung ist unverbindlich und garantiert die Teilnahme noch nicht.

Ü Articulatory Phonetics B (Übung)

In this class you will be introduced to all the articulatory organs and processes involved in the production of speech starting from the brain "giving orders" to the muscles and including the lungs creating airflow, the larynx creating voice as well as the supraglottal articulators that create speech sounds that finally leave your lips as air pressure fluctuations. The class will examine all the speech sounds possible in human languages, but of course there will be a special focus on the speech sounds of English and the characteristics best used to describe them.

VL Ringvorlesung Methoden und Theorien der Nordamerikastudien (Vorlesung)

Die interdisziplinäre Ringvorlesung erläutert exemplarisch Methoden und Theorien der Nordamerika-Studien aus historischer, politikwissenschaftlicher sowie sprach-, kultur- und literaturwissenschaftlicher Perspektive. Sie führt anwendungsbezogen in verschiedene methodische und theoretische Herangehensweisen der beteiligten Fächer ein und gibt einen Überblick über Entwicklungen in den Regionalstudien zu Nordamerika. Sie ist KEINE Einführungsveranstaltung der Studiengänge im Bereich Anglistik/ Amerikanistik, kann dort aber für ausgewählte Module eingebracht werden. Näheres entnehmen Sie bitte dem jeweiligen Modulhandbuch.

Ü Empirical Research Methods in (Applied) Linguistics (Übung)

Linguistic research is not witchcraft, but a systematic way of accessing non-obvious facts about language and its use. The intention of this course is to help students understand and evaluate the underlying principles of research that are reported in both linguistic literature and general media, and to enable them to carry out small empirical projects for term papers or theses. An introduction to some elementary statistical approaches is part of the parcel (math-phobics beware!). For purposes of familiarization, participants will work together in groups on small research projects of their own choice during the second half of the semester, and present their results in the final session. This Übung is particularly suitable as a companion course to Proseminars "Second Language Acquisition" and "Psycholinguistics", but may also be taken independently without any detriment.... #### Pragmatics (Vorlesung)

This lecture will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. The lecture by Claudia Claridge will focus on selected aspects in core pragmatic areas such as the Cooperative Principle/implicature (Grice) and speech act theory, to bring in more breadth and detail. While we will mostly concentrate on modern British English, the historical, variational and cross-cultural perspective will also be included. Topics to be treated in more detail are: hyperbole and irony, requests and apologies, strategic (e.g. political) uses of deixis, politeness and impoliteness as well as discourse markers. Both authentic and fictional examples will form the basis of analyses.

Ü Cultural Analysis for Literary and Cultural Studies (Übung)

As an interdisciplinary academic exercise Cultural Studies is based on the conviction that the study of cultural processes is important to an in-depth understanding of the ways in which "power" manifests itself in the social and political orders of all human communities. This class provides a survey of the central theories, concepts and methodologies of Cultural Studies as well as practical applications in analyzing and understanding cultural artifacts. We will decode messages of cultural communication in material as diverse as fairy tales, political speeches and advertisement and make sense of the discourses and structures of power these are embedded in.

Ü Prosodic Features (Übung)

This seminar focuses on the main prosodic/suprasegmental features duration, intensity and frequency. We will look both at their phonetic characteristics in the transmission (Acoustic Phonetics) and the reception/perception (Auditory Phonetics) of speech and their linguistic or paralinguistic function in terms of stress, intonation and the rhythmic structure of speech, i.e. addressing issues of Prosodic and Metrical Phonology.

Ringvorlesung: "Queer durch alle Disziplinen" (Vorlesung)

Auch das vergangene Jahr hat uns wieder in aller Deutlichkeit gezeigt: Homo- und Transsexualität ist in der Politik, in der Gesellschaft und demnach auch in den Medien brandaktuell – und das nicht nur in Deutschland, sondern international. Positive Beispiele der Toleranz und Akzeptanz auf der einen Seite – wie beispielsweise der Sieg von Conchita Wurst beim Eurovision Song Contest oder die Legalisierung der „Homo-Ehe“ in europäischen sowie US-amerikanischen Staaten – stehen in Kontrast zu Negativbeispielen wie etwa der Gesetzgebung in Russland oder Demonstrationen der „Besorgten Eltern“, welche sich gegen die Eingliederung der Förderung von Akzeptanz sexueller Vielfalt in den Lehrplan aussprechen. Da Vorurteile und Intoleranz oft auf mangelndem Wissen basieren, soll in einer interdisziplinären Auseinandersetzung nun ein öffentlicher und vor allem wissenschaftlicher Diskurs an die Universität Augsburg gebracht werden. Die Vorlesung diskutiert daher einschlägige Positionen queer durch al... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Renaissance Poetry (Übung)

As elsewhere in Europe, the Renaissance period in England brought about the flourishing of the arts and literature. The poetry written then by poets such as Wyatt, Sidney, Spenser, Shakespeare or Donne is still among the finest poetry written in the English language. The aim of this course is to give students an overview of English Renaissance poetry. The course covers both literary history and the socio-cultural background of the period and we will have a look at the most important topics and poetic forms of the period to see how they shaped poetic imagination. There will be plenty of opportunity to practise and refine poetry analysis skills in close readings of selected poems. This course covers the first part of the "Poetry: Elizabethan to Romantic Period" section of the corpus of topics for the state exam.

Discourse Analysis (Übung)

This course is an introduction to the field of discourse analysis; the analysis of spoken and written language. We will discuss discursive concepts, e.g. cohesion, coherence, discourse markers, gambits, frames, etc.) and will clarify how texts are perceived as connected both on formal and functional grounds. However, we shall not only talk about the theoretical concepts connected to the study of discourse but also learn to analyse and critically assess discourse by drawing on a variety of practical examples and empirical data.

Termin: November 2016 Interessenten werden gebeten, sich hier anzumelden. Details zu einer möglichen Teilnahme an der Exkursion werden dann in Vortreffen geklärt.

Information Packaging (Übung)

This course will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. Information packaging is about how we say or write things to make the surface order correspond to the elements' semantic status and to render things more easily understandable. In order to do this we subconsciously pay attention to concepts such as the following: given/known, inferrable or completely new information, topic or theme (what the communication is about) vs. comment / rheme (was is said about it), contrastive focus, and the principle of weight (the length and complexity of elements within a sentence). In this course (taught by Claudia Claridge) we will look at authentic texts from various fields and registers to investigate how speakers/writers have solved such packaging tasks. We will also look at how English with its stricter word order (in contrast to German) has evolved special sentence types for some information packaging needs (e.g. cleft sentences, there-sentences)... #### American Modernism and Postmodernism (Vorlesung)

The lecture surveys the two major periods of American literature and culture in the twentieth century. It draws on a broad range of literary and cultural texts—primarily narratives, plays, and poems but also theoretical treatises, paintings, photography, and film—to explore the variety of cultural production during the modernist and postmodernist periods. CULTURAL STUDIES: Beside literary studies, the lecture can also be taken for most cultural studies modules, including GsHsE 05 (Nr. 3), RsE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 050 LK (Nr. 3), and all cultural studies modules in the Anglistik/Amerikanistik BA and MA programs.

The Roaring Twenties (Übung)

This course sets out to read and analyze works of modernist American literature that were written during what have been called “The Roaring Twenties,” a decade of radical political and social changes – e.g. processes of urbanization, the development of a consumer culture, or the development of a shared media culture. We will explore how the literature of the time represents and stages these changes, aesthetic innovations, and relate the primary texts to programmatic and theoretical texts of the authors. This seminar is meant to acquaint students with a diversity of narratological, thematic, and stylistic structures. Furthermore it is the aim of the seminar to enable students to compare and contrast fictional texts in order to gain a deeper understanding of the complexity of the texts, their narrative structure, and their symbolic composition. A list of texts will be provided on digicampus at the beginning of the semester.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Theatre Trip to London 2016 (Exkursion)

Termin: voraussichtlich Anfang März 2016 Die Exkursion führt Studierende/Theaterinteressierte aus Augsburg in sämtliche Bereiche der englischen Theaterzene ein: National Theatre, das experimentelle Royal Court Theatre (English Stage Company) und kleinere Bühnen werden ebenso besucht wie die Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-upon-Avon, das ebenso wie Oxford (Magdalen-College, Ashmolean Museum) im Rahmen ein Ziel einer Tagesfahrt sein wird. Neben den Theaterbesuchen und der Diskussion der dort gesehenen Stücke sollen auch Einblicke in den Performanzaspekt des Dramas gewonnen werden. Wie jedes Jahr wird der Besuch des rekonstruierten Shakespeare Globe-Theaters für die Studierenden nicht nur eine Führung und einen Vortrag, sondern auch einen Workshop mit Schauspielern des Globe Ensembles enthalten. Der Performanzaspekt der Dramas steht darüber hinaus bei einer Backstage-Tour im National Theatre im Vordergrund, während der die Studierenden einen seltenen Blick hinter die Kulissen des T... ### Reading Contemporary Plays (Übung)

This course is designed to offer students the possibility to read and discuss a larger number of primary literature without having recourse to specific theory or following an overarching leitmotif. After an introductory phase, during which students will be made familiar with the most important techniques of drama analysis, we will study several selected contemporary plays and discuss them with regard to both form and content. The aim of the course is to provide an overview of important current topics in British and Irish drama such as national identity, globalization, gender and queer issues, intimate relationships and politics. We will also discuss questions concerning the suitability of the dramatic form to represent the human condition in the postmodern age and have a look at attempts at innovating theatre.

Drama Analysis (Übung)

This course provides students with the basic skills needed for analysing drama through both theory and practice. Key concepts of drama analysis including the duality of drama and theatre, time, space, and open and closed form will be studied and applied to two plays, John Osborne’s classic Look back in Anger (1957) and Martin Crimp’s ‘postdramatic’ play Attempts on her Life (1997). Drama Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year.

Dystopia in the Wasteland: Fallout (Übung)

The course’s aim is to introduce students to the genre of the video game dystopia, which we will primarily do by conducting an in-depth analysis of Bethesda’s Fallout 4 (2015). For this purpose, we will start by giving a short introduction to the concept of utopia / dystopia and to the specific genre of the video game dystopia. Besides the discussion of theoretical texts, we will briefly survey dystopian video games such as Half-Life 2 (Valve 2004), Metro 2033 (4A Games, 2010) and Tales From the Borderlands (Telltale Games, 2015). After this brief introductory segment, the course will exclusively focus on the analysis of Fallout 4. Our discussion will be supported by the lecture of theoretical texts as well as the playing of important parts of Fallout 4. The analysis will be conducted in three major steps: 1) discussion of the game’s repertoire and extrapolative qualities, that is, the intimate relation of Fallout 4's virtual world to our empirical present, 2) the player's imaginative ... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Advanced Syntax (Übung)

This course builds on syntactic key concepts and principles of analysis you have familiarised yourselves with in the introductory lecture to linguistics and (optionally) a course on syntactic basics. It is the aim of this course to deepen your understanding of English syntax to a level of proficiency that will allow you develop good syntactic analyses of complex sentences at the level required for the state exams. Drawing upon previous state exams as well as other authentic sentences, we will focus on particular problematic areas and approach them from a theoretical as well as practical perspective: The theoretical perspective will provide you with a sound knowledge of principles and recurring lines of argumentation (and problems) principally with regard to the CGEL (as the compulsory grammatical model for the state exams), but also - selectively - with reference to other models of grammatical description. Building on this, practical analyses will help you develop strategies of apply... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

VL Cultural Theory for Literary and Cultural Studies (Vorlesung)

These lectures on cultural theory outline some of the most relevant theoretical concepts for literary and cultural studies, including different notions of 'culture' itself. Rather than surveying theory for theory's sake, however, such concepts are presented as tools for analysis. Lectures will thus draw on current debates in order to demonstrate how questions of representation and power tie in with concepts such as 'identity' in the discursive field of culture. Examples and discussions from critical theory and pedagogy as well as from literary and cultural activism for social change complement the inquiry into the functions and effects of cultural representation.

The Language of Evaluation (Übung)

The moment we communicate with each other, either through writing or through speaking, we explicitly or implicitly express our viewpoint on both the subject matter and on the context in which the communicative process takes place. At the same time we even try to make the receiver/audience agree to our view of the world by generating solidarity. The language, which we use to evaluate, greatly depends on the text type and the context both influencing not only how we express but also how we perceive certain attitudes. The present seminar discusses the many faces of evaluation in the areas of political discourse, narratives, historiography, media and scientific discourse and introduces students to Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), an approach developed by Michael Halliday that regards language as a system of choices and which studies the relationship of language and its functions in social settings.... ### Ü Postcolonial Studies: From Theory to Practice (14-tägig) (Übung)

In the bi-weekly sessions of this course we explore notions of the 'material' in the context of postcolonial literary and cultural studies. We will examine the functions and significance of objects and things in relation to processes of producing, constructing, collecting and representing them in literary, media and other cultural contexts. In the non-session weeks the theoretical knowledge gained from readings and course discussions will be applied to a set of practical and creative group tasks for the organization of the GAPS (Association for Anglophone Postcolonial Studies) conference that will take place at the University of Augsburg in May 2016.

Ü Articulatory Phonetics A (Übung)

In this class you will be introduced to all the articulatory organs and processes involved in the production of speech starting from the brain "giving orders" to the muscles and including the lungs creating airflow, the larynx creating voice as well as the supraglottal articulators that create speech sounds that finally leave your lips as air pressure fluctuations. The class will examine all the speech sounds possible in human languages, but of course there will be a special focus on the speech sounds of English and the characteristics best used to describe them.

Film Analysis (Übung)

This course introduces you to the study of film via a broad range of critical perspectives. It covers classical theories such as auteurism, semiotics, and psychoanalysis as well as contemporary approaches to film that focus on the relationship between the screen and the body and mind of the spectator, on issues of race, ethnicity, and national identity, and on the shift from analog to digital film-making. You will be provided with an array of terms relating to the language of film such as narrative, mise-en-scène, editing, and genre, and will learn to ask some of the key questions that have guided film studies for the last decades: what are the aesthetic choices made by filmmakers? How do films work on us psychologically? How do they affect us politically? Film Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Ringvorlesung: "Queer durch alle Disziplinen" (Vorlesung)

Auch das vergangene Jahr hat uns wieder in aller Deutlichkeit gezeigt: Homo- und Transsexualität ist in der Politik, in der Gesellschaft und demnach auch in den Medien brandaktuell – und das nicht nur in Deutschland, sondern international. Positive Beispiele der Toleranz und Akzeptanz auf der einen Seite – wie beispielsweise der Sieg von Conchita Wurst beim Eurovision Song Contest oder die Legalisierung der „Homo-Ehe“ in europäischen sowie US-amerikanischen Staaten – stehen in Kontrast zu Negativbeispielen wie etwa der Gesetzgebung in Russland oder Demonstrationen der „Besorgten Eltern“, welche sich gegen die Eingliederung der Förderung von Akzeptanz sexueller Vielfalt in den Lehrplan aussprechen. Da Vorurteile und Intoleranz oft auf mangelndem Wissen basieren, soll in einer interdisziplinären Auseinandersetzung nun ein öffentlicher und vor allem wissenschaftlicher Diskurs an die Universität Augsburg gebracht werden. Die Vorlesung diskutiert daher einschlägige Positionen queer durch al... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Zugeordnete Lehrveranstaltungen: VL Key Topics in English Linguistics: Morphology (Vorlesung) Morphological theories examine the theory and practice of inflection and word-formation. While the former focuses on the coding and expression of functional meaning, the latter examines morphological processes for the formation of new words. Word-formation examines the ways in which words are built and in which new words are built on the bases of other words. We will look at different definitions of the term 'word' as well as diverse ways of building new words, e.g., affixation, compounding and conversion. Some references Adams, V. Poetry analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory). This course is intended for all students of English and American Studies, who should have attended courses in all five of these areas before they register for their final exams. The course provides a comprehensive introduction to the key concepts of poetry analysis and its various critical approaches. For this purpose we will analyze a wide range of selected poems that comprise the major epochs of English literature. In order to fully understand these texts, we shall also explore their respective historical and literary contexts.

Ü Articulatory Phonetics B (Übung)

In this class you will be introduced to all the articulatory organs and processes involved in the production of speech starting from the brain "giving orders" to the muscles and including the lungs creating airflow, the larynx creating voice as well as the supraglottal articulators that create speech sounds that finally leave your lips as air pressure fluctuations. The class will examine all the speech sounds possible in human languages, but of course there will be a special focus on the speech sounds of English and the characteristics best used to describe them.

Multimodality and Beyond (Übung)

According to the Glossary of Multimodality, "Multimodality is an inter-disciplinary approach that understands communication and representation to be more than about language." In this course, you are going to find out about the "more" provided by this approach in terms of methods, cooperating disciplines/approaches and fields of research, from a semiotic analysis of comics to a multimodal analysis of child play. #### Theatre Trip to London 2016 (Exkursion)

Termin: voraussichtlich Anfang März 2016 Die Exkursion führt Studierende/Theaterinteressierte aus Augsburg in sämtliche Bereiche der englischen Theaterzene ein: National Theatre, das experimentelle Royal Court Theatre (English Stage Company) und kleinere Bühnen werden ebenso besucht wie die Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-upon-Avon, das ebenso wie Oxford (Magdalen-College, Ashmolean Museum) im Rahmen ein Ziel einer Tagesfahrt sein wird. Neben den Theaterbesuchen und der Diskussion der dort gesehenen Stücke sollen auch Einblicke in den Performanzaspekt des Dramas gewonnen werden. Wie jedes Jahr wird der Besuch des rekonstruierten Shakespeare Globe-Theaters für die Studierenden nicht nur eine Führung und einen Vortrag, sondern auch einen Workshop mit Schauspielern des Globe Ensembles enthalten. Der Performanzaspekt der Dramas steht darüber hinaus bei einer Backstage-Tour im National Theatre im Vordergrund, während der die Studierenden einen seltenen Blick hinter die Kulissen des T... #### VL Cultural Theory for Literary and Cultural Studies (Vorlesung)

These lectures on cultural theory outline some of the most relevant theoretical concepts for literary and cultural studies, including different notions of 'culture' itself. Rather than surveying theory for theory's sake, however, such concepts are presented as tools for analysis. Lectures will thus draw on current debates in order to demonstrate how questions of representation and power tie in with concepts such as 'identity' in the discursive field of culture. Examples and discussions from critical theory and pedagogy as well as from literary and cultural activism for social change complement the inquiry into the functions and effects of cultural representation.

Dystopia in the Wasteland: Fallout (Übung)

The course's aim is to introduce students to the genre of the video game dystopia, which we will primarily do by conducting an in-depth analysis of Bethesda's Fallout 4 (2015). For this purpose, we will start by giving a short introduction to the concept of utopia / dystopia and to the specific genre of the video game dystopia. Besides the discussion of theoretical texts, we will briefly survey dystopian video games such as Half-Life 2 (Valve 2004), Metro 2033 (4A Games, 2010) and Tales From the Borderlands (Telltale Games, 2015). After this brief introductory segment, the course will exclusively focus on the analysis of Fallout 4. Our discussion will be supported by the lecture of theoretical texts as well as the playing of important parts of Fallout 4. The analysis will be conducted in three major steps: 1) discussion of the game's repertoire and extrapolative qualities, that is, the intimate relation of Fallout 4's virtual world to our empirical present, 2) the player's imaginative ... ### Ü Postcolonial Studies: From Theory to Practice (14-tägig) (Übung)

In the bi-weekly sessions of this course we explore notions of the 'material' in the context of postcolonial literary and cultural studies. We will examine the functions and significance of objects and things in relation to processes of producing, constructing, collecting and representing them in literary, media and other cultural contexts. In the non-session weeks the theoretical knowledge gained from readings and course discussions will be applied to a set of practical and creative group tasks for the organization of the GAPS (Association for Anglophone Postcolonial Studies) conference that will take place at the University of Augsburg in May 2016.

The Roaring Twenties (Übung)

This course sets out to read and analyze works of modernist American literature that were written during what have been called "The Roaring Twenties," a decade of radical political and social changes – e.g. processes of urbanization, the development of a consumer culture, or the development of a shared media culture. We will explore how the literature of the time represents and stages these changes, aesthetic innovations, and relate the primary texts to programmatic and theoretical texts of the authors. This seminar is meant to acquaint students with a diversity of narratological, thematic, and stylistic structures. Furthermore it is the aim of the seminar to enable students to compare and contrast fictional texts in order to gain a deeper understanding of the complexity of the texts, their narrative structure, and their symbolic composition. A list of texts will be provided on digicampus at the beginning of the semester.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Drama Analysis (Übung)

This course provides students with the basic skills needed for analysing drama through both theory and practice. Key concepts of drama analysis including the duality of drama and theatre, time, space, and open and closed form will be studied and applied to two plays, John Osborne's classic Look back in Anger (1957) and Martin Crimp's 'postdramatic' play Attempts on her Life (1997). Drama Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year.

Ü Systemic Functional Grammar (Übung)

This course provides an introduction to M.A.K. Halliday's conception of systemic functional grammar, where grammar is seen as an instrument for constructing concise coherent communication. We look at the structure of a sentence and its function, and analyse sentences with regard to their constituents, that is subject, finites, predicators, complements and adjuncts, and with regard to what meaning they express. Some references: Bloor, T. and M. Bloor (1995): The Functional analysis of English. London: Arnold Halliday, M.A.K. (1994): An introduction to functional grammar. London: Arnold

Pragmatics (Vorlesung)

This lecture will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. The lecture by Claudia Claridge will focus on selected aspects in core pragmatic areas such as the Cooperative Principle/implicature (Grice) and speech act theory, to bring in more breadth and detail. While we will mostly concentrate on modern British English, the historical, variational and cross-cultural perspective will also be included. Topics to be treated in more detail are: hyperbole and irony, requests and apologies, strategic (e.g. political) uses of deixis, politeness and impoliteness as well as discourse markers. Both authentic and fictional examples will form the basis of analyses.

American Modernism and Postmodernism (Vorlesung)

The lecture surveys the two major periods of American literature and culture in the twentieth century. It draws on a broad range of literary and cultural texts—primarily narratives, plays, and poems but also theoretical treatises, paintings, photography, and film—to explore the variety of cultural production during the modernist and postmodernist periods. CULTURAL STUDIES: Beside literary studies, the lecture can also be taken for most cultural studies modules, including GsHsE 05 (Nr. 3), RsE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 050 LK (Nr. 3), and all cultural studies modules in the Anglistik/Amerikanistik BA and MA programs.

Advanced Syntax (Übung)

This course builds on syntactic key concepts and principles of analysis you have familiarised yourselves with in the introductory lecture to linguistics and (optionally) a course on syntactic basics. It is the aim of this course to deepen your understanding of English syntax to a level of proficiency that will allow you develop good syntactic analyses of complex sentences at the level required for the state exams. Drawing upon previous state exams as well as other authentic sentences, we will focus on particular problematic areas and approach them from a theoretical as well as practical perspective: The theoretical perspective will provide you with a sound knowledge of principles and recurring lines of argumentation (and problems) principally with regard to the CGEL (as the compulsory grammatical model for the state exams), but also - selectively - with reference to other models of grammatical description. Building on this, practical analyses will help you develop strategies of apply... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Reading Contemporary Plays (Übung)

This course is designed to offer students the possibility to read and discuss a larger number of primary literature without having recourse to specific theory or following an overarching leitmotif. After an introductory phase, during which students will be made familiar with the most important techniques of drama analysis, we will study several selected contemporary plays and discuss them with regard to both form and content. The aim of the course is to provide an overview of important current topics in British and Irish drama such as national identity, globalization, gender and queer issues, intimate relationships and politics. We will also discuss questions concerning the suitability of the dramatic form to represent the human condition in the postmodern age and have a look at attempts at innovating theatre.

Discourse Analysis (Übung)

This course is an introduction to the field of discourse analysis; the analysis of spoken and written language. We will discuss discursive concepts, e.g. cohesion, coherence, discourse markers, gambits, frames, etc.) and will clarify how texts are perceived as connected both on formal and functional grounds. However, we shall not only talk about the theoretical concepts connected to the study of discourse but also learn to analyse and critically assess discourse by drawing on a variety of practical examples and empirical data.

Ü Empirical Research Methods in (Applied) Linguistics (Übung)

Linguistic research is not witchcraft, but a systematic way of accessing non-obvious facts about language and its use. The intention of this course is to help students understand and evaluate the underlying principles of research that are reported in both linguistic literature and general media, and to enable them to carry out small empirical projects for term papers or theses. An introduction to some elementary statistical approaches is part of the parcel (math-phobics beware!). For purposes of familiarization, participants will work together in groups on small research projects of their own choice during the second half of the semester, and present their results in the final session. This Übung is particularly suitable as a companion course to Proseminars "Second Language Acquisition" and "Psycholinguistics", but may also be taken independently without any detriment.... #### Jewish American Literature of the Turn of the 20th Century (Übung)

This course will approach and discuss the experiences of Jewish immigrants to the United States around the turn of the 20th century via the literary texts they produced. We will trace how their writings reflect both individual and collective concerns and how they served as a means to negotiate ethnic and religious identity during an era of increased efforts to Americanize newcomers, as a means to express feelings about both the 'old' world and the 'new,' as a means to come to terms with economic hardships, unfulfilled dreams, and hostility, as a means to voice social criticism, etc.

VL Ringvorlesung Methoden und Theorien der Nordamerikastudien (Vorlesung)

Die interdisziplinäre Ringvorlesung erläutert exemplarisch Methoden und Theorien der Nordamerika-Studien aus historischer, politikwissenschaftlicher sowie sprach-, kultur- und literaturwissenschaftlicher Perspektive. Sie führt anwendungsbezogen in verschiedene methodische und theoretische Herangehensweisen der beteiligten Fächer ein und gibt einen Überblick über Entwicklungen in den Regionalstudien zu Nordamerika. Neben den Vereinigten Staaten und Kanada geht die Ringvorlesung auch auf Mexiko und die Karibik ein. Hinweis: Die Ringvorlesung steht allen Interessierten offen. Sie ist KEINE Einführungsveranstaltung der Studiengänge im Bereich Anglistik/

Amerikanistik, kann dort aber für ausgewählte Module eingebracht werden. Näheres entnehmen Sie bitte dem jeweiligen Modulhandbuch.

The Language of Evaluation (Übung)

The moment we communicate with each other, either through writing or through speaking, we explicitly or implicitly express our viewpoint on both the subject matter and on the context in which the communicative process takes place. At the same time we even try to make the receiver/audience agree to our view of the world by generating solidarity. The language, which we use to evaluate, greatly depends on the text type and the context both influencing not only how we express but also how we perceive certain attitudes. The present seminar discusses the many faces of evaluation in the areas of political discourse, narratives, historiography, media and scientific discourse and introduces students to Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), an approach developed by Michael Halliday that regards language as a system of choices and which studies the relationship of language and its functions in social settings.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Ü Prosodic Features (Übung)

This seminar focuses on the main prosodic/suprasegmental features duration, intensity and frequency. We will look both at their phonetic characteristics in the transmission (Acoustic Phonetics) and the reception/perception (Auditory Phonetics) of speech and their linguistic or paralinguistic function in terms of stress, intonation and the rhythmic structure of speech, i.e. addressing issues of Prosodic and Metrical Phonology.

Study Trip to Ireland 2016 (Exkursion)

Wie in den vergangenen Jahren auch, wird von Prof. Dr. Middeke auch 2016 wieder eine Exkursion nach Irland angeboten. Die Exkursion findet Ende September 2016 statt und beinhaltet u.a. einen Besuch beim Dublin Theatre Festival und eine Fahrt an die Westküste. InteressentInnen tragen sich bitte unverbindlich in diese Veranstaltung ein und werden dann per Mail über Vorbesprechungen informiert. ACHTUNG: Die Anmeldung zu dieser Veranstaltung ist unverbindlich und garantiert die Teilnahme noch nicht.

Ü Cultural Analysis for Literary and Cultural Studies (Übung)

As an interdisciplinary academic exercise Cultural Studies is based on the conviction that the study of cultural processes is important to an in-depth understanding of the ways in which "power" manifests itself in the social and political orders of all human communities. This class provides a survey of the central theories, concepts and methodologies of Cultural Studies as well as practical applications in analyzing and understanding cultural artifacts. We will decode messages of cultural communication in material as diverse as fairy tales, political speeches and advertisement and make sense of the discourses and structures of power these are embedded in.

Film Analysis (Übung)

This course introduces you to the study of film via a broad range of critical perspectives. It covers classical theories such as auteurism, semiotics, and psychoanalysis as well as contemporary approaches to film that focus on the relationship between the screen and the body and mind of the spectator, on issues of race, ethnicity, and national identity, and on the shift from analog to digital film-making. You will be provided with an array of terms relating to the language of film such as narrative, mise-en-scène, editing, and genre, and will learn to ask some of the key questions that have guided film studies for the last decades: what are the aesthetic choices made by filmmakers? How do films work on us psychologically? How do they affect us politically? Film Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year.... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Information Packaging (Übung)

This course will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. Information packaging is about how we say or write things to make the surface order correspond to the elements' semantic status and to render things more easily understandable. In order to do this we subconsciously pay attention to concepts such as the following: given/known, inferrable or completely new information, topic or theme (what the communication is about) vs. comment / rheme (was is said about it), contrastive focus, and the principle of weight (the length and complexity of elements within a sentence). In this course (taught by Claudia Claridge) we will look at authentic texts from various fields and registers to investigate how speakers/writers have solved such packaging tasks. We will also look at how English with its stricter word order (in contrast to German) has evolved special sentence types for some information packaging needs (e.g. cleft sentences, there-sentences).... ### Renaissance Poetry (Übung)

As elsewhere in Europe, the Renaissance period in England brought about the flourishing of the arts and literature. The poetry written then by poets such as Wyatt, Sidney, Spenser, Shakespeare or Donne is still among the finest poetry written in the English language. The aim of this course is to give students an overview of English Renaissance poetry. The course covers both literary history and the socio-cultural background of the period and we will have a look at the most important topics and poetic forms of the period to see how they shaped poetic imagination. There will be plenty of opportunity to practise and refine poetry analysis skills in close readings of selected poems. This course covers the first part of the "Poetry: Elizabethan to Romantic Period" section of the corpus of topics for the state exam.

In the bi-weekly sessions of this course we explore notions of the 'material' in the context of postcolonial literary and cultural studies. We will examine the functions and significance of objects and things in relation to processes of producing, constructing, collecting and representing them in literary, media and other cultural contexts. In the non-session weeks the theoretical knowledge gained from readings and course discussions will be applied to a set of practical and creative group tasks for the organization of the GAPS (Association for Anglophone Postcolonial Studies) conference that will take place at the University of Augsburg in May 2016.

Advanced Syntax (Übung)

This course builds on syntactic key concepts and principles of analysis you have familiarised yourselves with in the introductory lecture to linguistics and (optionally) a course on syntactic basics. It is the aim of this course to deepen your understanding of English syntax to a level of proficiency that will allow you develop good syntactic analyses of complex sentences at the level required for the state exams. Drawing upon previous state exams as well as other authentic sentences, we will focus on particular problematic areas and approach them from a theoretical as well as practical perspective: The theoretical perspective will provide you with a sound knowledge of principles and recurring lines of argumentation (and problems) principally with regard to the CGEL (as the compulsory grammatical model for the state exams), but also - selectively - with reference to other models of grammatical description. Building on this, practical analyses will help you develop strategies of apply... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Ü Cultural Analysis for Literary and Cultural Studies (Übung)

As an interdisciplinary academic exercise Cultural Studies is based on the conviction that the study of cultural processes is important to an in-depth understanding of the ways in which "power" manifests itself in the social and political orders of all human communities. This class provides a survey of the central theories, concepts and methodologies of Cultural Studies as well as practical applications in analyzing and understanding cultural artifacts. We will decode messages of cultural communication in material as diverse as fairy tales, political speeches and advertisement and make sense of the discourses and structures of power these are embedded in.

Ü Prosodic Features (Übung)

This seminar focuses on the main prosodic/suprasegmental features duration, intensity and frequency. We will look both at their phonetic characteristics in the transmission (Acoustic Phonetics) and the reception/perception (Auditory Phonetics) of speech and their linguistic or paralinguistic function in terms of stress, intonation and the rhythmic structure of speech, i.e. addressing issues of Prosodic and Metrical Phonology.

Information Packaging (Übung)

This course will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. Information packaging is about how we say or write things to make the surface order correspond to the elements' semantic status and to render things more easily understandable. In order to do this we subconsciously pay attention to concepts such as the following: given/known, inferrable or completely new information, topic or theme (what the communication is about) vs. comment / rheme (was is said about it), contrastive focus, and the principle of weight (the length and complexity of elements within a sentence). In this course (taught by Claudia Claridge) we will look at authentic texts from various fields and registers to investigate how speakers/writers have solved such packaging tasks. We will also look at how English with its stricter word order (in contrast to German) has evolved special sentence types for some information packaging needs (e.g. cleft sentences, there-sentences)... #### Ü Empirical Research Methods in (Applied) Linguistics (Übung)

Linguistic research is not witchcraft, but a systematic way of accessing non-obvious facts about language and its use. The intention of this course is to help students understand and evaluate the underlying principles of research that are reported in both linguistic literature and general media, and to enable them to carry out small empirical projects for term papers or theses. An introduction to some elementary statistical approaches is part of the parcel (math-phobics beware!). For purposes of familiarization, participants will work together in groups on small research projects of their own choice during the second half of the semester, and present their results in the final session. This Übung is particularly suitable as a companion course to Proseminars "Second Language Acquisition" and "Psycholinguistics", but may also be taken independently without any detriment.... #### Reading Contemporary Plays (Übung)

This course is designed to offer students the possibility to read and discuss a larger number of primary literature without having recourse to specific theory or following an overarching leitmotif. After an introductory phase, during which students will be made familiar with the most important techniques of drama analysis, we will study several selected contemporary plays and discuss them with regard to both form and content. The aim of the course is to provide an overview of important current topics in British and Irish drama such as national identity, globalization, gender and queer issues, intimate relationships and politics. We will also discuss questions concerning the suitability of the dramatic form to represent the human condition in the postmodern age and have a look at attempts at innovating theatre.

American Modernism and Postmodernism (Vorlesung)

The lecture surveys the two major periods of American literature and culture in the twentieth century. It draws on a broad range of literary and cultural texts—primarily narratives, plays, and poems but also theoretical treatises, paintings, photography, and film—to explore the variety of cultural production during the modernist and postmodernist periods. CULTURAL STUDIES: Beside literary studies, the lecture can also be taken for most cultural studies modules, including GsHsE 05 (Nr. 3), RsE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 05 (Nr. 3), GyE 050 LK (Nr. 3), and all cultural studies modules in the Anglistik/Amerikanistik BA and MA programs.

VL Key Topics in English Linguistics: Morphology (Vorlesung)

Morphological theories examine the theory and practice of inflection and word-formation. While the former focuses on the coding and expression of functional meaning, the latter examines morphological processes for the formation of new words. Word-formation examines the ways in which words are built and in which new words are built on the bases of other words. We will look at different definitions of the term 'word' as well as diverse ways of building new words, e.g., affixation, compounding and conversion. Some references Adams, V. #### Theatre Trip to London 2016 (Exkursion)

Termin: voraussichtlich Anfang März 2016 Die Exkursion führt Studierende/Theaterinteressierte aus Augsburg in sämtliche Bereiche der englischen Theaterzene ein: National Theatre, das experimentelle Royal Court Theatre (English Stage Company) und kleinere Bühnen werden ebenso besucht wie die Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-upon-Avon, das ebenso wie Oxford (Magdalen-College, Ashmolean Museum) im Rahmen ein Ziel einer Tagesfahrt sein wird. Neben den Theaterbesuchen und der Diskussion der dort gesehenen Stücke sollen auch Einblicke in den Performanzaspekt des Dramas gewonnen werden. Wie jedes Jahr wird der Besuch des rekonstruierten Shakespeare Globe-Theaters für die Studierenden nicht nur eine Führung und einen Vortrag, sondern auch einen Workshop mit Schauspielern des Globe Ensembles enthalten. Der Performanzaspekt der

Dramas steht darüber hinaus bei einer Backstage-Tour im National Theatre im Vordergrund, während der die Studierenden einen seltenen Blick hinter die Kulissen des T... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Film Analysis (Übung)

This course introduces you to the study of film via a broad range of critical perspectives. It covers classical theories such as auteurism, semiotics, and psychoanalysis as well as contemporary approaches to film that focus on the relationship between the screen and the body and mind of the spectator, on issues of race, ethnicity, and national identity, and on the shift from analog to digital film-making. You will be provided with an array of terms relating to the language of film such as narrative, mise-en-scène, editing, and genre, and will learn to ask some of the key questions that have guided film studies for the last decades: what are the aesthetic choices made by filmmakers? How do films work on us psychologically? How do they affect us politically? Film Analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory) and is offered once every year... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

The Roaring Twenties (Übung)

This course sets out to read and analyze works of modernist American literature that were written during what have been called "The Roaring Twenties," a decade of radical political and social changes – e.g. processes of urbanization, the development of a consumer culture, or the development of a shared media culture. We will explore how the literature of the time represents and stages these changes, aesthetic innovations, and relate the primary texts to programmatic and theoretical texts of the authors. This seminar is meant to acquaint students with a diversity of narratological, thematic, and stylistic structures. Furthermore it is the aim of the seminar to enable students to compare and contrast fictional texts in order to gain a deeper understanding of the complexity of the texts, their narrative structure, and their symbolic composition. A list of texts will be provided on digicampus at the beginning of the semester... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Dystopia in the Wasteland: Fallout (Übung)

The course's aim is to introduce students to the genre of the video game dystopia, which we will primarily do by conducting an in-depth analysis of Bethesda's Fallout 4 (2015). For this purpose, we will start by giving a short introduction to the concept of utopia / dystopia and to the specific genre of the video game dystopia. Besides the discussion of theoretical texts, we will briefly survey dystopian video games such as Half-Life 2 (Valve 2004), Metro 2033 (4A Games, 2010) and Tales From the Borderlands (Telltale Games, 2015). After this brief introductory segment, the course will exclusively focus on the analysis of Fallout 4. Our discussion will be supported by the lecture of theoretical texts as well as the playing of important parts of Fallout 4. The analysis will be conducted in three major steps: 1) discussion of the game's repertoire and extrapolative qualities, that is, the intimate relation of Fallout 4's virtual world to our empirical present, 2) the player's imaginative ... #### Ü Articulatory Phonetics B (Übung)

In this class you will be introduced to all the articulatory organs and processes involved in the production of speech starting from the brain "giving orders" to the muscles and including the lungs creating airflow, the larynx creating voice as well as the supraglottal articulators that create speech sounds that finally leave your lips as air pressure fluctuations. The class will examine all the speech sounds possible in human languages, but of course there will be a special focus on the speech sounds of English and the characteristics best used to describe them.

VL Cultural Theory for Literary and Cultural Studies (Vorlesung)

These lectures on cultural theory outline some of the most relevant theoretical concepts for literary and cultural studies, including different notions of 'culture' itself. Rather than surveying theory for theory's sake, however, such concepts are presented as tools for analysis. Lectures will thus draw on current debates in order to demonstrate how questions of representation and power tie in with concepts such as 'identity' in the discursive field of culture. Examples and discussions from critical theory and pedagogy as well as from literary and cultural activism for social change complement the inquiry into the functions and effects of cultural representation.

Multimodality and Beyond (Übung)

According to the Glossary of Multimodality, "Multimodality is an inter-disciplinary approach that understands communication and representation to be more than about language." In this course, you are going to find out about the "more" provided by this approach in terms of methods, cooperating disciplines/approaches and fields of research, from a semiotic analysis of comics to a multimodal analysis of child play. (<https://multimodalityglossary.wordpress.com/multimodality/>)

Pragmatics (Vorlesung)

This lecture will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. The lecture by Claudia Claridge will focus on selected aspects in core pragmatic areas such as the Cooperative Principle/implicature (Grice) and speech act theory, to bring in more breadth and detail. While we will mostly concentrate on modern British English, the historical, variational and cross-cultural perspective will also be included. Topics to be treated in more detail are: hyperbole and irony, requests and apologies, strategic (e.g. political) uses of deixis, politeness and impoliteness as well as discourse markers. Both authentic and fictional examples will form the basis of analyses.

Ringvorlesung: "Queer durch alle Disziplinen" (Vorlesung)

Auch das vergangene Jahr hat uns wieder in aller Deutlichkeit gezeigt: Homo- und Transsexualität ist in der Politik, in der Gesellschaft und demnach auch in den Medien brandaktuell – und das nicht nur in Deutschland, sondern international. Positive Beispiele der Toleranz und Akzeptanz auf der einen Seite – wie beispielsweise der Sieg von Conchita Wurst beim Eurovision Song Contest oder die Legalisierung der „Homo-Ehe“ in europäischen sowie US-amerikanischen Staaten – stehen in Kontrast zu Negativbeispielen wie etwa der Gesetzgebung in Russland oder Demonstrationen der „Besorgten Eltern“, welche sich gegen die Eingliederung der Förderung von Akzeptanz sexueller Vielfalt in den Lehrplan aussprechen. Da Vorurteile und Intoleranz oft auf mangelndem Wissen basieren, soll in einer interdisziplinären Auseinandersetzung nun ein öffentlicher und vor allem wissenschaftlicher Diskurs an die Universität Augsburg gebracht werden. Die Vorlesung diskutiert daher einschlägige Positionen queer durch al... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Jewish American Literature of the Turn of the 20th Century (Übung)

This course will approach and discuss the experiences of Jewish immigrants to the United States around the turn of the 20th century via the literary texts they produced. We will trace how their writings reflect both individual and collective concerns and how they served as a means to negotiate ethnic and religious identity during an era of increased efforts to Americanize newcomers, as a means to express feelings about both the 'old' world and the 'new,' as a means to come to terms with economic hardships, unfulfilled dreams, and hostility, as a means to voice social criticism, etc.

Ü Systemic Functional Grammar (Übung)

This course provides an introduction to M.A.K. Halliday's conception of systemic functional grammar, where grammar is seen as an instrument for constructing concise coherent communication. We look at the structure of a sentence and its function, and analyse sentences with regard to their constituents, that is subject, finites, predicators, complements and adjuncts, and with regard to what meaning they express. ### Renaissance Poetry (Übung)

As elsewhere in Europe, the Renaissance period in England brought about the flourishing of the arts and literature. The poetry written then by poets such as Wyatt, Sidney, Spenser, Shakespeare or Donne is still among the finest poetry written in the English language. The aim of this course is to give students an overview of English Renaissance poetry. The course covers both literary history and the socio-cultural background of the period and we will have a look at the most important topics and poetic forms of the period to see how they shaped poetic imagination. There will be plenty of opportunity to practise and refine poetry analysis skills in close readings of selected poems. This course covers the first part of the "Poetry: Elizabethan to Romantic Period" section of the corpus of topics for the state exam.

The Language of Evaluation (Übung)

The moment we communicate with each other, either through writing or through speaking, we explicitly or implicitly express our viewpoint on both the subject matter and on the context in which the communicative process takes place. At the same time we even try to make the receiver/audience agree to our view of the world by generating solidarity. The language, which we use to evaluate, greatly depends on the text type and the context both influencing not only how we express but also how we perceive certain attitudes. The present seminar discusses the many faces of evaluation in the areas of political discourse, narratives, historiography, media and scientific discourse and introduces students to Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), an approach developed by Michael Halliday that regards language as a system of choices and which studies the relationship of language and its functions in social settings.... ### Poetry Analysis (Übung)

Poetry analysis is one of the five major areas relevant to literary studies (prose, drama, poetry, film, and literary theory). This course is intended for all students of English and American Studies, who should have attended courses in all five of these areas before they register for their final exams. The course provides a comprehensive introduction to the key concepts of poetry analysis and its various critical approaches. For this purpose we will analyze a wide range of selected poems that comprise the major epochs of English literature. In order to fully understand these texts, we shall also explore their respective historical and literary contexts.

Discourse Analysis (Übung)

This course is an introduction to the field of discourse analysis; the analysis of spoken and written language. We will discuss discursive concepts, e.g. cohesion, coherence, discourse markers, gambits, frames, etc.) and will clarify how texts are perceived as connected both on formal and functional grounds. However, we shall not only talk about the theoretical concepts connected to the study of discourse but also learn to analyse and critically assess discourse by drawing on a variety of practical examples and empirical data.

Information Packaging (Übung)

This course will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. Information packaging is about how we say or write things to make the surface order correspond to the elements' semantic status and to render things more easily understandable. In order to do this we subconsciously pay attention to concepts such as the following: given/known, inferrable or completely new information, topic or theme (what the communication is about) vs. comment / rheme (was is said about it), contrastive focus, and the principle of weight (the length and complexity of elements within a sentence). In this course (taught by Claudia Claridge) we will look at authentic texts from various fields and registers to investigate how speakers/writers have solved such packaging tasks. We will also look at how English with its stricter word order (in contrast to German) has evolved special sentence types for some information packaging needs (e.g. cleft sentences, there-sentences)... ### Theatre Trip to London 2016 (Exkursion)

Termin: voraussichtlich Anfang März 2016 Die Exkursion führt Studierende/Theaterinteressierte aus Augsburg in sämtliche Bereiche der englischen Theaterzene ein: National Theatre, das experimentelle Royal Court Theatre (English Stage Company) und kleinere Bühnen werden ebenso besucht wie die Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-upon-Avon, das ebenso wie Oxford (Magdalen-College, Ashmolean Museum) im Rahmen ein Ziel einer Tagesfahrt sein wird. Neben den Theaterbesuchen und der Diskussion der dort gesehenen Stücke sollen auch Einblicke in den Performanzaspekt des Dramas gewonnen werden. Wie jedes Jahr wird der Besuch des rekonstruierten Shakespeare Globe-Theaters für die Studierenden nicht nur eine Führung und einen Vortrag, sondern auch einen Workshop mit Schauspielern des Globe Ensembles enthalten. Der Performanzaspekt der Dramas steht darüber hinaus bei einer Backstage-Tour im National Theatre im Vordergrund, während der die Studierenden einen seltenen Blick hinter die Kulissen des T... ### Study Trip to Ireland 2016 (Exkursion)

Wie in den vergangenen Jahren auch, wird von Prof. Dr. Middeke auch 2016 wieder eine Exkursion nach Irland angeboten. Die Exkursion findet Ende September 2016 statt und beinhaltet u.a. einen Besuch beim Dublin Theatre Festival und eine Fahrt an die Westküste. InteressentInnen tragen sich bitte unverbindlich in diese Veranstaltung ein und werden dann per Mail über Vorbesprechungen informiert. ACHTUNG: Die Anmeldung zu dieser Veranstaltung ist unverbindlich und garantiert die Teilnahme noch nicht.

Ü Postcolonial Studies: From Theory to Practice (14-tägig) (Übung)

In the bi-weekly sessions of this course we explore notions of the 'material' in the context of postcolonial literary and cultural studies. We will examine the functions and significance of objects and things in relation to processes of producing, constructing, collecting and representing them in literary, media and other cultural contexts. In the non-session weeks the theoretical knowledge gained from readings and course discussions will be applied to a set of practical and creative group tasks for the organization of the GAPS (Association for Anglophone Postcolonial Studies) conference that will take place at the University of Augsburg in May 2016.

Pragmatics (Vorlesung)

This lecture will be taught by Prof. Dr. Claudia Claridge. The lecture by Claudia Claridge will focus on selected aspects in core pragmatic areas such as the Cooperative Principle/implicature (Grice) and speech act theory, to bring in more breadth and detail. While we will mostly concentrate on modern British English, the historical, variational and cross-cultural perspective will also be included. Topics to be treated in more detail are: hyperbole and irony, requests and apologies, strategic (e.g. political) uses of deixis, politeness and impoliteness as well as discourse markers. Both authentic and fictional examples will form the basis of analyses.

HS Dialectology (Hauptseminar)

This seminar consists of a theory-based dialectological part and a descriptive part. First, we will look at the importance of mechanisms and causes of language change, which lead to the formation of new dialects and eventually languages (geographical and sociological aspects are considered especially). The second part will then provide an overview of dialectal variation in the English-speaking world, covering the British Isles, North America and the southern hemisphere (Australia, New Zealand, South Africa).

The American Drama of the Early 20th Century (Proseminar)

In this seminar we will look at what was described at the time as "the newest, freest, most potent and democratic forces in the art of the American stage – the Little Theatre." (Mackay 1917) The Little Theatre Movement became a steadily growing movement over the second decade of the 20th century and has revolutionized the American theatre scene from the communal margins. Amateur actors and playwrights were provided a space to experiment with new forms of dramatic expression while the Broadway theatres were still dominated by European influences. However, also the Little Theatre Movement had its origins in Europe but provided a new space for the emergence of a 'genuine' American drama. In this course we will look at the cultural background of the American theater scene during the 19th century, the emergence of the Little Theatre Movement as a broad movement but also at specific little theatres in various regions of the US. It is also the aim of the seminar to enable students to analyze ... (weiter siehe Digicampus)

Theories of Meaning (Hauptseminar)

This seminar will deal with one of the most fundamental concepts of western philosophy, i.e. meaning, from a linguistic vantage point. We will read and discuss selected excerpts from original texts each of which attempts to frame the meaning of meaning on its own terms (e.g. Frege, Humboldt, Lyons, Saussure, Wittgenstein, Austin, Searle, Grice, Sperber & Wilson, Derrida, etc.). The aim of this seminar is to familiarize you with past and present approaches to the study of "meaning" and underline their respective implications for the study of language today.

Sprache und Emotion (Hauptseminar)

Freude, Angst, Trauer, Liebe, Verzweiflung, Hass und Ekel: Emotionen sind für das menschliche Leben konstitutive Phänomene. Durch Sprache können Gefühle geweckt, ausgedrückt und intensiviert werden. Im Seminar sollen kognitionslinguistische, pragmatische und sprachhistorische Aspekte dieses Themas beleuchtet werden.

HS Introduction to Psycholinguistics (Hauptseminar)

While the existence of 'Universal Features' of human languages is still highly controversial, there is little doubt that, irrespective of their surface characteristics, all human languages are processed by human minds that work essentially along the same lines – whether language is heard or spoken, read or written. This course will explore the cognitive processes that are at the root of this facility. Participants will be introduced to central concepts (modular vs connectionist processing), methods (e.g. eye-tracking, RT measurement) and observations (e.g. tip-of-the-tongue states, speech errors, priming) of psycholinguistic research.

HS (B.A.) Literature of Decolonization and Independence: Postcolonial 'Classics' (Hauptseminar)

In this seminar we explore the origins and critical developments of postcolonial literary studies in relation to three seminal novels that feature some of the most memorable literary characters in the field and have become 'classic' postcolonial texts: Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart (1958), V.S. Naipaul's A House for Mr Biswas (1961), and Salman Rushdie's Midnight's Children (1981). Taking into consideration their different contexts of emergence, we will trace – amongst other aspects – how they depict and relate to the independence movements and processes of decolonization in their various regional settings and why they remain highly relevant in current decolonial debates.
